

AFFAIRS OF CITY
 TO BE DISCUSSED

Commercial Club Will Hold Special Meeting and Smoker at B. & O. Assembly Room Tonight.

GENERAL INVITATION IS GIVEN

Centennial Celebration Plans Will be Considered—Announcement of Standing Committees.

The local centennial celebration and the welfare and advancement of Seymour are the principal subjects to be discussed tonight at the special meeting and smoker of the Commercial Club at the assembly room in the B. & O. division building. Indications are that the attendance will be large and that many citizens who are not members of the organization will be present. About one hundred invitations have been sent out to prospective members of the organization, but President Kaufman made it very clear today that everybody interested in the progress of this city is urged to attend. Arrangements are being made to accommodate one of the biggest crowds that ever attended a meeting of the Club.

The proposed centennial celebration this fall will be one of the first subjects to be discussed. The county centennial committee, of which Superintendent T. A. Mott is chairman, has asked the Commercial Club to co-operate in the local celebration and he will give an outline of what is planned throughout the county. The schools in the various townships have already started their celebrations which have been largely attended.

Some of the business men and other citizens desire to see the celebration held jointly with the annual fall festival and believe that the centennial will give excellent opportunity for conducting pageants in which everyone in the city and county will have opportunity to participate. The Commercial Club which includes in its membership most of the merchants and professional men has consented to take the matter up and a decision will likely be made tonight whether or not the celebration will be held and just what character it will assume. A special committee, it is expected, will be appointed to formulate plans and will report back to the members later.

President Kaufman will also announce the members of the seven or eight standing committees of the Commercial organization at the meeting tonight. Some time ago this meeting was planned by the directors at one of their weekly noonday luncheons and he then decided to withhold the appointments until this time. The committees will serve throughout the year.

Several other important matters are scheduled to come before the organization. After the completion of the business session a social hour will be enjoyed.

It is desired that a large representation of the citizens be present and it is emphasized that no one need feel a hesitancy in attending because he is not a member of the club.

COMMISSION EXPECTED TO SEND ENGINEERS SOON

Final Steps Towards Settlement of Utility Case May be Taken Within Two Weeks.

In compliance with the promise made to Mayor Ross in a letter recently, it is expected that the Indiana Public Service Commission will send engineers here in a short time to make appraisements in the local utility case which has been appealed from this city. The petition was originally filed more than two years ago, but action was postponed from time to time in hope that a compromise could be reached.

Recently it became apparent that a compromise was out of the question on the basis offered by the Interstate Public Service Company and Mayor Ross insisted that the commission take immediate action. In reply to his request the commission wrote that engineers would be sent here within a month or six weeks. The letter was received more than three weeks ago and it is believed that final steps towards settling the controversy will be taken soon.

PASTORS TELL OF WORK OF BISHOP FRANCIS ASBURY

Two Ministers Speak at Centennial Memorial Service Held Sunday Night at First M. E. Church.

A centennial memorial service to commemorate the work of Bishop Francis Asbury, the first American bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church, was conducted at the First M. E. church Sunday night. The congregations of the First M. E. and German M. E. joined in the service. Addresses eulogizing the work of the pioneer Methodist churchman were delivered by the pastors, the Rev. William A. Schuff and the Rev. J. H. Carnes. Bishop Asbury's death occurred March 31, 1816. Similar memorial services were held throughout the United States. A movement is on foot to erect a bronze statue of Bishop Asbury in Washington and each Methodist church in the country has been asked to contribute one dollar for this fund.

PLANS COMPLETED FOR NEW BUILDING

Christian Congregation Undertakes Task of Raising $20,000 Within Next Two Weeks.

$8,000 ALREADY SUBSCRIBED

Expected that Contract for Modern Church Home Will be Awarded During the First of May.

With $8,000 already pledged the building committee of the Central Christian church today entered upon a two weeks' campaign to secure the remainder of a fund of $20,000 for the construction of a handsome new church home. The members of the congregation have given their hearty co-operation to the movement and it is confidently believed that the required funds will be raised within the next twelve days. The present intention is to award the contract between May 1st and 15th so that the building can be completed by the first of November. The members of the committee and the congregations are desirous of having sufficient money to entirely pay for the new building and all fixtures when the dedicatory exercises are held.

The plans for the new church home have been completed by the architect and meet with the approval of the congregation. The building, it is thought, will cost from $15,000 to $20,000 and will be modern in every particular.

Under the structure will be a complete basement containing a large gymnasium or banquet room, a primary department, a junior class room and other rooms for the accommodation of the Sunday School classes. The main auditorium will be on the ground floor. Surrounding it will be a number of class rooms, the pastor's study and a mothers' room. Some of the apartments may be separated from the main auditorium by means of disappearing coil partitions which may be raised when there is need for larger seating capacity. About the auditorium will be a large balcony. On the balcony a number of class rooms will be available. With the Sunday School rooms on the ground room and the balcony the church will have accommodations for nine hundred or one thousand people.

The building will be constructed of brick with stone trimmings. The plans show it to be a handsome structure modeled after colonial lines. The location of the new building.

BIG TIME PLANNED AT CONSOLIDATED

Schools of Jackson Township Outside of City will Hold Centennial Exercises Tuesday.

PROGRAM IS INTERESTING

Large Collection of Historical Relics a Feature—Observance Movement is Growing.

Interest in the Indiana centennial observance is county-wide and present indications point to a unique and unusually successful celebration in this city next fall. Local business men are manifesting much enthusiasm in the proposed event and it is known that they will support the movement in an effort to make the celebration better than any ever held here. The plans will be discussed in a general way at the meeting of the Commercial Club tonight and it is expected that definite arrangements will be made towards planning for the festival.

The activity of the schools in the various townships have done much towards bringing the centennial before the people. The schools in each township have joined in their centennial celebrations and most of them have been held in connection with the closing of the spring terms. The observance at Cortland was the first and was very successful. Five hundred people participated in the basket dinner at the school yard at Cortland and also in the exercises during the afternoon. Chestnut Ridge was the scene of another celebration Friday. People from all parts of Washington township were present and highly praised the program. The school children are pleased with the idea and readily enter into the spirit of the movement.

The public schools of Jackson township, outside of Seymour, will hold centennial exercises tomorrow at the Consolidated school. The schools of the township will close on that day and each school will have part in the program. The afternoon program will consist of readings, music by the Seymour high school orchestra and an exhibition of views of early Indiana accompanied by a lecture. The collection of relics will also be an important and interesting feature of the day's program. Plans have been made for a big basket dinner and a good time is expected by all. A large representation of the patrons of the township schools is anticipated. Mrs. Earl M. Cox will give several readings and the explanation of the various slides to be shown will be made by Mr. Cox.

Vernon township schools will observe their centennial celebration at Uniontown and Bethany April 14 or 15. On May 3, Carr township schools will give a program at Medora in connection with the department of agriculture. A basket dinner will be served at noon and L. E. Brown, of Connersville will give an address in the afternoon on "One Hundred Years of Hoosier History." In the evening he will deliver an address on "Uncle Sam." The celebration will be in connection with the graduation exercises, it is announced, and the officials of the schools and the residents of Carr township are enthused over the elaborate plans. Ten graduates will receive diplomas.

The Centennial held in connection with the Driftwood township schools at Vallonia, was well attended Saturday, regardless of the fact that the weather was very unfit for such an occasion. H. D. Alldredge acted as chairman.

The exercises opened at 1:30 by singing "America." After this a paper was read by Agnes Hehman, entitled "Judy's Mill." This was an old mill that used to stand on the farm now owned by Wm. Hehman. A vivid description of the old water wheel and methods of grinding were given. Miss Gladys Hess followed with a paper on "Pioneer Life in Driftwood", which clearly gave an insight into the world lived by our forefathers. Gilbert Gossman read a paper on "Indiana Leaders and Heroes."

The prize, which the Parent-Teachers Association had offered for the best paper on "History of Driftwood

OBSERVANCE OF GOLDEN WEDDING

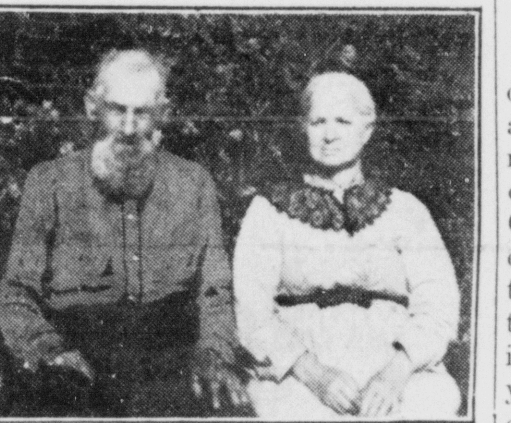

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Richart, East of This City, Enjoy Fifty Years of Happy Wedded Life.

EVENT QUIETLY CELEBRATED

Pioneers of This Vicinity Contribute Largely to the Development and Betterment of Community.

Surrounded by the members of their immediate family, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Richart, pioneers of this community, today celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their country home east of the city. Mr. Richart, who is seventy-seven years old, recently suffered a severe attack of pneumonia but has recovered and enjoys good health. Mrs. Richart's health has not been the best during the last two years. She is now ill as a result of stomach trouble, but her physician says her condition is much improved and she thoroughly enjoyed the observance of the fiftieth anniversary of her marriage. She is ten years the junior of her husband.

To chronicle the life of Mr. and Mrs. Richart is to record the development of this community. Mr. Richart was the son of George and Mary Richart and was born August 25, 1838, on the farm where he now lives. His parents were natives of Strausburg, France, which later became a province under German dominion. Mrs. Richart was born in Hessen county, Darmstadt, Germany, on September 17, 1848, and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Seiner. When she was eight years old her father, who was a professor in a Germany college, died, and eight years later with her mother she came to the United States. For several weeks Mrs. Seiner and her daughter remained in New York and from there came to Jennings county. They lived on a farm located about one mile from the Richart farm. The marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Richart occurred April 10, 1866. Soon afterwards Mrs. Seiner moved to North Vernon, where she resided until her death.

MR. AND MRS. LOUIS RICHAET.

After the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Richart, they went to house-keeping on the Richart farm which contained about eighty acres. Upon the death of Mr. Richart's parents, he took over the farm, purchasing the interests held by the other heirs. It was then located in the center of an unbroken wilderness. Rough and winding paths among the trees were the only roads. There were few neighbors and livelihood depended upon hard work. But Louis Richart, endowed with good health and all the vigor of young manhood, set to work with a grim determination to win. No task was too hard for him to undertake.

The farm which was originally staked out as a government claim by George Richart was covered with immense trees which had to be cut down before the soil could be tilled. Young Richart set to work clearing the land as rapidly as he could. When he cultivated the soil he had to use wooden plows and harrows. During early manhood he did not even own a wagon and used a sled instead.

At that time Seymour had not been founded. Rockford was the principal trading point for a wide territory. Mr. Richart realizing the need of better roads interested the farmers along the route in building one and they began the work of widening the path through the forest. Later he was instrumental in securing the construction of other roads and at all times was deeply

VILLA REMAINS ONE DAY AHEAD OF HIS PURSUERS

Mexican Bandit with 200 Followers Passed Parral on Saturday, According to Reports at Border.

By United Press. El Paso, Tex., April 10.—Hanging doggedly to Villa's trail the United States cavalry was to-day in the desolate Sierras around Parral. At least twenty-four hours' march ahead of his pursuers Villa with two hundred men and fresh mounts was at a mining camp in Durango state. That Villa is fleeing at top speed to join the Arrieta brothers who have three thousand followers around Durango City, was the information sent to the border by officers of the American mining company at Parral. Villa passed Parral on Saturday. General Funston announced today that the line between General Pershing's swiftly advancing front and the border will be strengthened at

ANNUAL COUNT OF SCHOOL CHILDREN

Enumerators Begin Work This Morning and Will Have Task Completed by May 1st.

THOROUGH CANVAS TO BE MADE

Amount of Money Received From State School Fund Depends Upon Result of Count.

The annual enumeration of children from six to twenty-one years of age for school purposes, began this morning. The enumeration will be in charge of Albert Spray and John Goodale, they having been appointed by the Board of Education. These two men did the work last year, and their experience then will help them in making a thorough canvas this year. The enumeration must be completed by May 1st.

The enumerators should be given every possible help in their work. It is essential that the name of every child between the age of six and twenty-one be secured, whether they are in school or not, as the amount of money received by the local schools from the state school fund is based upon this enumeration. Thus the enumeration bears a direct relation to the city tax question, in that the more received from the state fund the less will have to be raised by local taxation for the support of the city schools. In other words, for every child within the school age whose name is not secured in the enumeration, the city schools are deprived of his share of the state school money. If this number is large, the loss amounts to a considerable sum.

The enumerators say that most of the people understand this thoroughly, but there are some who do not, and they wish to have it made very plain, so that no one will willingly hold back the names of children of school age.

The enumeration in Seymour in the last few years has shown a steady increase each year, and it is believed that the one this year will again show a gain. Messrs. Goodale and Spray will make a complete and thorough canvas of the city and will endeavor not to miss a single child.

U. S. ARMY OFFICIALS THINK VILLA WILL BE TAKEN SOON

Code Letters Telling that Band has Been Broken Up Expected Any Time This Week.

By United Press. Washington, April 10.—Hope for breaking up the Villa band grew today—exactly a month since the issuance of orders sending General Pershing's riders across the border. Army men thought code letters from San Antonio headquarters may bring news before week-end that the bandits have been scattered by the death or capture of their leader. The "warm-trail," they believe, is "warmer" though actual news of operations was lacking over Sunday.

Henry Price, of Brownstown, was in the city today on business.

BERNSTORFF AND LANSING CONFER

German Ambassador and Secretary of State Presumably Discussing Sussex Case.

MORE EVIDENCE IS GATHERED

Liner St. Paul Expected to Arrive Thursday With Additional Affidavits About Affair.

By United Press. Washington, April 10.—German Ambassador Bernstorff requested and was granted a conference with Secretary Lansing this afternoon, presumably to discuss the Sussex case. Ambassador Gerard cabled the state department today that he expected to receive a note from the German government today replying to a query as to whether a German submarine had sunk the Sussex.

The Liner St. Paul bringing affidavits that will form an important part of the evidence in the Sussex case is not likely to arrive until Thursday instead of today as expected. This may prevent decisive administration action that was due to follow tomorrow's cabinet meeting.

Ambassador Gerard's official report on the German disclaimer of responsibility carried in press dispatches Saturday night was expected at the state department sometime today.

Compilation of such evidence to meet this disclaimer is under way. The nature of this government's evidence in the Sussex case continues to be a secret. It was said today by high authority to be strong enough to convince the president and Secretary Lansing that German submarine attacked the vessel, but perhaps not conclusive enough to break off diplomatic relations.

FIFTIETH DAY OF GREAT CAMPAIGN AGAINST VERDUN

German Crown Prince Strikes Mighty Blows Against French Defenses—Furious Attack.

By Ed. L. Keene, U. P. Correspondent. London, April 10.—The greatest battle in the history of the world entered its fiftieth day today with the crown prince driving home mighty blows and the fighting becoming more furious than since the early days of the campaign against Verdun.

On an arch like front, the Germans are throwing more than 150,000 men into action, pounding simultaneously against the northwestern and northeastern gate to the French fortress.

The French war office this afternoon admitted the loss of 500 yards of French line on Dead Man's Hill emphasizing that the struggle has entered a new phase. After squeezing the French out of the Bethincourt salient the crown prince rushed up fresh troops without a moment's delay and ordered a general assault on both banks of the Meuse.

Since the Germans launched the campaign against Verdun with an artillery attack on the night of Feb. 21, they have rolled up the French line on both banks of the Meuse capturing about 150 square miles of territory and nearly thirty French villages.

TOLEDO STREET CAR TIEUP NOW ENDED

Men Get Three-Cent Increase In Wages.

Toledo, O., April 10.—The thirteen-day Toledo street car tieup is ended. Cars are in operation today. The men were given an increase in wages of 3 cents an hour, but they will not be permitted to wear union buttons and the open shop rule will prevail.

The settlement came at a conference called by representatives of the street car men's union when it was seen that they stood to lose under the proposed receivership which was to have been put into effect by Judge M. Willits of the United States district court. The scale runs from 26 to 32 cents an hour.

The tieup resulted over a week ago when the men reported for work wearing the official insignia of the recently formed union. The company then sent its cars into the barns, and since that time all Toledo has had to walk or depend on automobile busses to take them to and from their work at exorbitant prices.

Mayor Charles M. Milroy, who had made repeated attempts to settle the tieup, gave out the following interview:

"In many ways this has been the most remarkable strike in the history of street railway controversies. There was no violence, not a brick thrown nor a police call. I believe a new record for peace in the conduct of a big street car tieup has been set for American cities."

TEACHERS CLOSE MEETING

Place of Next Meeting of Indiana Teachers Is Undecided.

Chicago, April 10.—The thirty-third annual convention of the Northern Indiana Teachers' association closed here with the election of officers as follows: President, Edgar Mendenhall, Goshen; vice president, H. A. Moran, Michawaka; secretary, Miss Edith Bergland, East Chicago; treasurer, O. M. Pittinger, Frankfort; chairman executive committee, John F. Nuner, Mishawaka; directors, E. F. Moore, Muncie, president; E. M. Canine, East Chicago, secretary.

The selection of the place for the next annual convention was left for the executive committee to decide.

Fairbanks at French Lick.

French Lick, Ind., April 10.—Charles Warren Fairbanks, candidate for the Republican nomination for president, arrived here. He was accompanied by Fred A. Sims, former secretary of state, and G. A. H. Shideler of Marion, two of his closest political advisers. They are here for a short rest.

Railroad Man Stricken.

Terre Haute, Ind., April 10.—Frank L. Campbell of Logansport, superintendent of the Logansport division of the Vandalia railroad, was stricken with paralysis while eating lunch at the union station and is in a serious condition. He was taken to his home in Logansport.

ALLEGED MAIL THIEF HELD

Bound Over to U. S. Grand Jury In Default of Bond.

Hammond, Ind., April 10.—Harry G. Phillips, sixty-eight years old, who was arrested at Valparaiso by Deputy United States Marshal Frank S. Ream and Postoffice Inspector W. B. Platt, charged with stealing letters from mail boxes, was arraigned before C. L. Surprise, United States commissioner, here and was bound over to the federal grand jury.

He was remanded to the Indianapolis jail in default of $500 bond. He denied that he had stolen mail at Valparaiso, but a counterfeit key with several missing letters were found in his possession, the authorities charge.

Belgrade Being Rebuilt.

Vienna, April 10.—The Austrians are engaged in rebuilding and repairing a large part of the city of Belgrade. Besides restoring the public buildings 100,000 panes of glass have been replaced and 12,000 new keys made.

1,000 Women Are Postmen.

London, April 10.—The number of women postmen employed in London has just been increased from 500 to 1,000.

Everyone reads the Want Ads.

ASKS COURT TO THROW OUT BRIBERY CHARGES

Says Delay Entitles Muncie Mayor to Discharge.

Muncie, Ind., April 10.—Deputy Prosecutor Gene Williams, acting as attorney for Mayor Rollin H. Bunch, who was indicted a year ago on bribery and malfeasance charges, filed motions in the Delaware circuit court, asking that the four cases pending against Mayor Bunch be dismissed for want of prosecution.

The cases are the ones in which Bunch is charged with accepting money for permission to install and operate slot machines in the city, with conspiring with other officials to solicit and accept bribes and with malfeasance in office.

In the motions to dismiss it is charged that the cases have been pending three full terms of court and that the defendants have at all times been ready to go to trial and that all delay has been occasioned by the state.

Judge Ellis declared that it was the understanding, when appeals were taken to the supreme court in the cases against Williams and other indicted officials, that nothing was to be done in the four cases remaining in the local court until the supreme court had rendered its decision on the appeal. The cases appealed were dismissed from the supreme court. It is expected that the motions will be overruled and Judge Ellis may set the cases for immediate trial. Judge Fred Gause of Newcastle will come here to assume jurisdiction in the case against Williams and others charged with conspiracy and accepting bribes.

MEXICO REGULATES PRICES

Merchants Will Not Be Allowed to Overcharge.

Mexico City, April 10.—General Gonzales, in the official press, published an order establishing a commission to regulate the prices of staples, the president being the provost of General Gonzales military administration.

The commission will publish weekly in the press the price list in circulating currency, based upon gold values of staples, these fluctuating with the exchange. Staples will include all provisions, medicine, fuel, illuminants and clothing, except articles considered luxurious. The commission will not accept excuses from merchants overcharging, but will hear protests from them regarding the prices fixed by the commission, providing the protesting merchants already are selling at.

PRISONERS HELP AMERICAN FORCES

Captured Villistas Turn Sentiment of Natives.

PERSHING MOVING SOUTH

Aeroplane Important Part of the Mexican Expedition—Used In Scouting and Carrying Dispatches—Carranza Permits Use of Railroads.

With General Pershing at Front at San Antonio, Chihuahua, via radio to Columbus, April 10.—Fifteen prisoners taken by the advance column as suspected Villistas are doing much to turn the sentiment of the natives in favor of the Americans on account of the treatment received by the prisoners.

The American dollar is bringing many Mexican merchants with their goods into our camps as the column penetrates the territory reached by the southern railroads.

General Pershing is in receipt of information from his advance columns which declares the pursuit of Villa is now to the south of here. All men and horses are well acclimated by this time and in excellent condition.

Washington, April 10.—Serious trouble has developed between the colored troops of the Twenty-fourth infantry at Del Rio, Texas, and residents of Del Rio, according to a telegram received by Representative Gerner, Texas, and referred by Mr. Gerner to Secretary Baker. The telegram which is signed by District Judge Joseph Jones, District Attorney C. C. Belcher and Sheriff John R. Ammond, declares that the trouble at Del Rio started following the shooting of a soldier of the Twenty-fourth infantry by a member of the Texas Rangers.

It adds that a large number of negro soldiers of the Twenty-fourth infantry surrounded the rangers' house, firing volleys of shots, but without causing any deaths. The telegram urged that steps be taken at once to prevent bloodshed.

Immediately upon the receipt of the telegram the secretary of war telegraphed General Funston to make an investigation and to take precautions to obviate possibility of further trouble. Secretary Baker declared that a full report of the incident should be sent to him without delay.

Indications that the Carranza authorities in Mexico are at last permitting the railroads to be used in supplying the American forces south of the border were given in a dispatch received at the war department, declaring that large quantities of food supplies and gasoline delivered at Casas Grandes, the principal base of the Mexican expedition, had been distributed there and stating that the problem of supplying troops had been simplified. Secretary Baker himself refused to say whether the railroad was being used, but the shipment referred to could not be at its destination so quickly except by rail.

General Pershing himself is moving south along the trail to Satevo, personally directing, so far as possible, the pursuit of Villa and the search of the mountains and plains adjacent to the trails being followed. Before leaving his headquarters on the San Geronimo ranch north of Guerrero, General Pershing said General Luis Herrera, the Carranza general whose defection was reported at one time, called on him and that the two had discussed in a friendly manner the efforts being made by both governments to run down the common enemy.

The excellent work that has been done by aeroplanes has been so marked that headquarters officials are anxiously awaiting reinforcement of that arm of the service. Although it is now recognized that the machines being used are not of the type to give the best service, General Pershing's reports indicate that the five still in service are doing good work both in scouting and carrying dispatches. It has been due to them that General Pershing has been able to keep in communication at all with the fast moving cavalry detachments.

FIFTY ELK ARE LIBERATED

In the Adirondack Forest Reserve by the Order of Elks.

Albany, April 10.—Fifty elk from the Yellowstone National park have been liberated in the Adirondack forest reserve by the Benevolent Protective Order of Elks and the state conservation commission for the protection of elk in the Adirondacks. This announcement was made by the conservation commission.

The elk were received by express from Gardner, Montana. Fifteen years ago sixty-seven elk were liberated in the Adirondacks, and some of the descendants are still in the mountains.

Mother and Daughters Suffocated.

Detroit, April 10.—Mrs. Lillian Diebler and her two young daughters were suffocated and two persons were injured in a fire which swept the Diebler home on the east side. The mother and children were trapped in a room on the second floor, and although they were not burned, all were dead when firemen reached them.

The Pennsylvania Railroad is seventy years old this month. President Rea in a signed statement tells how the system has been built so that today it is regarded as one of the greatest in the world. In brief he emphasizes the worth of co-operation. He says: "In these seventy years we have learned much. Above all, we know that the future prosperity of our company depends upon the continued confidence, co-operation and good-will of the people it serves. For what our railroad represents after these seventy years, credit belongs: First, to our stockholders, whose capital made possible the development of this railroad; second, to those directors, officers and employees who have gone before, and to the 250,000 of us who are now working to make this railroad system better every day; third, to a helpful and reasonable public."

The keynote address of Judge Quincy A. Myers at the Republican state convention in Indianapolis last week threw a scare into the ranks of the opposition. The Taggart press agent has been pounding the life out of his typewriter trying to discredit the speech but the figures are given to substantiate the utterances, and he is having a hard time to find a defense. In utter despair he has rested his argument upon the single assertion that the statements were not true. Judge Myers' speech is viewed with alarm by the opposition as it breaks to pieces the foundation of the only argument the Democratic state organization had for keeping Taggart's lieutenants in control.

WINTER WHEAT NOT AS GOOD AS IN APRIL, 1915

Average Condition was 78.3 Per Cent. as Compared to 88.8 at the Same Time Last Year.

Washington, April 10.—The average condition of winter wheat on April 1 was 78.3 per cent. compared with 88.8 per cent. on April 1, 1915, the department of agriculture announced today.

The average price per bushel was 98.6, compared with $1.317 on April 1, 1915. There was a decrease of 9.4 points from December 1, in condition, compared with an average decline of 3.5 points in the last ten years.

A production of about $495,000, 400 bushels was forecast.

The condition of rye April 1, was 87.8 per cent. or normal, compared with 89.5 on April 1, 1915.

In principal wheat states, the condition was:

A Missouri Merchant

Of course, he wanted to be shown.

So he made an investigation in his own store as to the effects of different kinds of manufacturers advertising.

He reached the conclusion that the only kind that was felt at his counter was newspaper advertising.

He decided that newspaper advertising was the only form he cared to put his business energy behind.

This Missouri merchant's letter is on file with the Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers Association, World Building, New York.

Perhaps some manufacturer would like to see a copy. Sent on request.

PLANS COMPLETED FOR NEW BUILDING

ing is yet undecided. When the plans were drawn some time ago it was thought that the building would be erected at the present site, corner Fourth and Poplar streets, but since the movement has been assured persons outside of the congregation have suggested that a different location be selected.

Already $8,000 has been pledged, it is stated, and the campaign for funds among the members is to be waged during the next two weeks. The committee hopes that most of the funds can be raised this week. The pastor has had much experience in church building and has erected a handsome church in Indianapolis. He has been successful in financing such projects and with his assistance the members feel that the movement here will be successful. It is stated that the Christian church is raising a fund of $6,000,000 to be divided equally for the following purposes: church extension, including new buildings, ministerial relief, colleges and universities C. W. B. M., foreign missionary society and benevolences, including children's and old folks' homes.

It is assured that with the church extension department back of the local project there is no danger of the building ever falling out of the hands of the Brotherhood. The fund was created for this very purpose, it is asserted, and is an incentive to the various congregations to provide themselves with modern church buildings. The Rev. F. P. Smith is actively engaged in the new movement and is giving his personal attention to the work. The members of the building committee are: Ray R. Keach, chairman, C. B. Davis and W. H. Reynolds. The congregation is enthusiastic over the plans and now that the proposition is assured the campaign for funds is progressing satisfactorily, according to the committee.

Card of Thanks.

We desire to express our thanks to the neighbors, friends and relatives who so kindly assisted us in many ways during the sickness and after the death of our dear father, Thomas Riley. Especially we are grateful to Rev. C. J. Conrad, to Mr. F. J. Voss and to all who expressed their sympathy. We shall always hold them in kindest memory.

Township" was awarded to Miss Iva Geyer, a freshman.

Recitations from various pupils of the township were given as follows: "Indiana".....Frieda Woolf. "Hoosiers".....Esther Haner. "Airy Days".....Thelma True. "Name of Old Glory".....Blanche Slade. "Up and Down O Brandywine".....Edith Waskom.

"Original Poetry".....Stella Griffin. Song: "On the Banks of the Wabash".....Alva Buening.

Reminiscences of the early days in the county were read by James L. Burcham. These had been written by his father in the "early sixties." To say that the entire audience was well entertained is expressing it too mildly. Men, women and children listened with profound interest.

Among the talks of the round table was one given by Michael Waskom of South Driftwood. It can truly be said that Mr. Waskom was a teacher "Forty Years or More Ago." The best of interest was manifested throughout the entire performance.

A celebration will be held in Brownstown, probably at the poor farm, during the late summer or fall. It is announced and will be in the nature of an agricultural pageant. County Agent Cobb is interested in linking up this celebration with his department and show the advancement that has been made in agricultural circles during the last one hundred years.

WHITE CREEK M. E. CHURCH TOTALLY DESTROYED BY FIRE

Gasoline Tank of Light System Exploded when Fluid Dropping from the Valve is Ignited.

The German M. E. church building at White Creek, Hamilton township, was totally destroyed by fire Sunday afternoon following an explosion of the gasoline lighting system. Albert Behrman, one of the members, had been asked to repair the lighting system which had not been working properly. During the afternoon Mr. Behrman and his brother, Walter, went to the church and cleaned out the lamps.

They then turned gasoline into the generating cup and applied a match. The system has a pressure tank and when Albert Behrman turned on the gasoline after the generator was hot some of the fluid dropped from the valve and ignited. His left hand was on the valve and was severely burned.

Mr. Behrman ran from the building to extinguish the flames on his hand and just after he left the door the gasoline tank exploded, tearing out a corner of the building. The heat from the explosion was so great that the contents of the building were scorched. The entire structure soon took fire from the gasoline which was scattered throughout the interior. The organ and most of the benches were carried out and saved. Mr. Behrman believes that if the gasoline had not dropped on his hand he would have remained in the building and would probably have been killed when the tank exploded. The church was remodeled about two years ago.

Insurance to the amount of from $600 to $700 was carried on the building. The church property was valued at approximately $2,500.

once and that the Columbus base will be retained.

Tentative plans for the removal of the Columbus base to a point further south on the border have been abandoned.

Among the new troops to go south will be the detachment of twenty-fourth infantry, colored, which had trouble at Del Rio, Texas, last night resulting in the killing of a negro trooper by State Ranger Parler.

"I have ordered the transfer of the negro troop at Del Rio to duty on the line of communication in Mexico," stated General Funston today. "We will let them work off their extra energy down there."

Reinforcements and supplies for the American expedition continue to pour into Mexico today from Columbus. Activities bent on the capture of Villa were speeded up here also in the purchasing and forwarding of supplies. To keep base with the rapidly lengthening line of communication, the wireless station at Nami-quipa has been moved farther south.

The field telegraph already extends to Galeana.

In the meantime Villa is south of the Durango state which rumors persist is the "dead line" between which President Wilson is reported to have promised Carranza the United States forces will not pursue Villa.

ONE HUNDRED LEADING HOOSIERS 1816-1916

(Prepared for the United Press by the Centennial Department of the Indiana Historical Commission.)

HUGH McCULLOCH (1808-1895) (31)

Hugh McCulloch, one of America's leading financiers, and Secretary of the United States treasury under three presidents was born in Maine in 1808. After studying law in Boston he migrated to Fort Wayne and there began his practice in 1833. Turning his attention to banking he mastered the science of finance amid the changes of this rapidly developing frontier state. His services were everywhere in demand and in 1835 he became cashier and manager of the Ft. Wayne state bank. So successful was his management that when the new state bank was organized he was elected president, and under his direction it was recognized as the safest and best managed bank in the west. It went through the panic of 1857 without suspension and continued specie payment at the beginning of the war, after the government had suspended specie payment. When he resigned as president of the bank, 1863, it held $3,300,000 in gold on a capital of $3,000,000.

NEW SCHOOL BUILDING

$20,000 Structure at Williams Nearing Completion.

The new $20,000 high school building under construction at Williams is rapidly nearing completion, only a small amount of work on the inside remaining to be done.

The building, which is said to be one among the most handsome of its size in the state is greatly appreciated by the residents of that section. It is built of vitrified stone faced brick, the outside of these bricks being of an oval shape; and is trimmed with Bedford stone. The effect is said to be very beautiful.—Bedford Mail.

INDIANAPOLIS COMMITTEE STARTS STATE PARK FUND

Campaign Will Continue Two Weeks in Effort to Raise $25,000 to Buy Tract.

By United Press.

Indianapolis, April 10.—A joint committee of one hundred men from the Board of Trade and the Chamber of Commerce started a campaign today for subscriptions to the state park fund.

The campaign will last two weeks and Indianapolis is expected to contribute about $25,000. The money will be used to buy three scenic tracts of land in Indiana to be made into state parks. The state expects first to buy Turkey Run which is to be sold at auction on May 10.

All of the business organizations in the city are represented on the committee.

interested in any movement that meant the development of the community.

Mr. Richart holds the distinction of making the first purchase from the first store in Seymour. He was at the store room of Thomas Ewing when he received a supply of coffee. Mr. Richart purchased it as soon as it was unpacked. Early in his career wild deer and turkeys abounded in the forests and he has killed many of them. He says that he killed the last two wild deer that were ever shot in this vicinity. He fed a number of hogs which furnished his principal meat supply, but they were kept in an entirely different method from that which now prevails on a well regulated stock farm. The hogs were permitted to roam through the forest and during the spring and summer would go miles from his home. By fall they would be so wild that it was necessary to shoot them as they could not be driven home. Frequently he rounded up the animals near Moss Lake, four miles from his home.

Mr. Richart was a shrewd business man as well as an energetic and successful farmer. From time to time he bought additional land until he held title to about 1,200 acres located in Jackson and Jennings county. Some time ago he divided this up among his children, and now oversees the farm constituting the home place. For several years he had not done active farm work. Mr. Richart had the ability to see a good bargain and always took advantage of it. By frugality he always had a large amount of ready cash available and would loan this out among his neighbors. For years before the practice of banking became general among the farmers the Richart home was familiarly known as the "private bank," and loans were negotiated there.

In all of his business transactions Mr. Richart was honest and upright. While resting in the twilight of life he has the satisfaction of looking back over his long, active career and knowing that his fortune has been amassed by fair business methods and that he has the high respect of all of his acquaintances. Throughout life and especially during his early struggle for a start Mrs. Richart has been his constant and helpful companion, aiding in making his home surroundings cheerful and pleasant. Mr. and Mrs. Richart first went to housekeeping in a log house but this was later replaced with a comfortable brick home. Several years ago it was remodeled and with all modern conveniences is one of the most up-to-date country homes in this vicinity.

Mr. Richart has always been interested in public affairs and has held several offices as the choice of the voters. In the capacity of a public servant he transacted the affairs of his office with the same care and efficiency that characterized his private business career. Both Mr. and Mrs. Richart are members of the St. Ambrose Catholic church and have lived consistent lives. Many have benefited by their benevolence.

Mr. and Mrs. Richart are the parents of thirteen children, seven of whom are living. They are: Frank, of Jennings county, Peter, a local merchant, Lewis, a Jackson county farmer, Mrs. Anna Dehler, of this city, Sister M. Eusebia, teacher of music in the St. Francis convent at Oldenburg, Ind., Carl, of Jackson county, Leo, who lives at home, and Joe, treasurer of the Jackson County Loan & Trust Company, this city. Their family circle also includes twenty grandchildren.

ONE SPOONFUL GIVES ASTONISHING RESULTS

Seymour residents are astonished at the QUICK results from the simple mixture of buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., known as Adler-i-ka. This remedy acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel and is so THOROUGH a bowel cleanser that it is used successfully in appendicitis. ONE SPOONFUL of Adler-i-ka relieves almost ANY CASE of constipation, sour or gassy stomach. ONE MINUTE after you take it, the gasses rumble and pass out. C. E. Loertz.

Mixed Flour.

At the time of the Spanish War a tax was levied on mixed flour, the control of the manufacture and sale of such flour being placed in the Department of Internal Revenue. The reason given at that time was that there was a certain amount of secret mixing and that the saving in cost due to mixing was not being given to the consumer. Congress, accordingly, in 1898, passed a law "taxing out of existence" the business of making mixed flours. In those days there was no Pure Food Law, and the taxing power of the Government was of necessity used in connection with matters which now are controlled by non-taxing legislation. In 1906 the Pure Food Law was passed, but, for some reason or other, the old taxing law was not at that time repealed.

Senator Cummins, of Iowa, and Representative Rainey, of Illinois, presented repeal bills to the last Congress, the Cummins bill having been passed by the Senate. The present bill, in addition to repealing the old law, calls for very explicit labeling. If the bill is made law mixed flour will be labeled both quantitatively and qualitatively. The proposed measure is endorsed by representatives of the Women's Clubs, the National Grange, the National Corn Association and many of the State Boards of Agriculture.

MRS. MARY R. PERRINE DEAD

AFTER ILLNESS OF 18 WEEKS

Remains Shipped to Brownstown Where Funeral Will be Held at 2 O'clock Tuesday Afternoon.

The remains of Mrs. Mary Rosaline Perrine, whose death occurred in a Chicago hospital Saturday, were brought to Brownstown today. The funeral will take place Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Mrs. Perrine had been ill for the last eighteen weeks with a severe case of leakage of the heart, but it was not until the last ten weeks that she was considered as seriously ill. At that time she was taken to a Chicago hospital where she seemed to be improving and at the end of four weeks was removed to her home, but it seemed that her condition was getting more alarming and she was again removed to the hospital, where she died Saturday.

Mrs. Mary Rosaline Perrine was born in Knoxville, Tenn., in 1875 and was married in 1895 to John Perrine who survives her. She was forty-one years old at her death. She was the mother of five children, one of whom preceded her to the grave. Besides the husband and children she leaves a mother in California, who is unable to attend the funeral. She was a member of the Baptist church of Bluealien, Ill. The funeral will be held in Brownstown at the home of Andrew Perrine, the Rev. Jessie Nichols officiating.

Style can't be pressed into your clothes

A tailor's goose can put a veneer of style into your clothes—but the beauty that is more than skin deep requires careful, skillful masterly hand tailoring—the kind that goes into made to measure clothes.

There's more hand tailoring employed in a custom made suit than in any other kind—hand tailoring is a time-honored custom method—it gives the clothes their style permanency.

Hand tailoring is just one of the advantages that custom tailored clothes provide—their styles are more distinctive and their woollens of a really worth while individuality.

HOTEL FOR GIRLS.

Home Bequeathed to Workers by New York Merchant.

EXPERIENCE SHOWED NEED.

Suggests That Hotel For Unmarried Working Women Be Erected In Business District, but Does Not Confine Executors to Any One Region.

New York.—Charles Bertram Webster, a merchant who died March 16 last, bequeathed about one-third of his large estate for the foundation of a corporation which is directed to erect in the retail dry goods district an apartment house wherein unmarried working women shall have apartments at cost.

The decedent, who for many years lived at the Hotel Nederland, was a native of Providence, R. I., a son of Josiah L. Webster, a dry goods merchant there. He came to New York early in life. In 1896 he retired from active business, but never lost his interest in it or in the people who worked for the firm.

Before providing for the project which had long been in his mind, Mr. Webster bequeathed to five cousins $5,000 each, set aside $25,000 to Thomas W. Beckley, described as a "servant," and gave $10,000 to his coachman, Frank Falkner.

He bequeathed to Joseph L. Webster, his brother, all his horses, carriages, harness, clothing, jewelry and automobiles and two-thirds of his residuary estate. He then said:

"Having been engaged for many years in the business known as a department store in the city of New York and having employed a large number of unmarried women in that business, I have realized that the domestic environments of many of them are not conducive to their morals or health, and I have concluded to endeavor to improve the condition of some of them by giving them the opportunity to live in clean, well ventilated, comfortable and attractive apartments, and for that purpose I direct my executors to form, or cause to be formed, as soon as practicable after my death a corporation for benevolent purposes under the membership corporation law of the state of New York or under such other law of the state of New York as may be applicable at the time.

"The particular objects for which such corporation is to be formed are to generally improve the conditions of unmarried working women and particularly to establish, maintain and conduct apartments in the borough of Manhattan for occupation by unmarried working women regardless of their religious belief or nationality and wherein they may find comfortable and attractive homes.

"The name of said corporation shall be the Webster apartments, and the territory in which the corporation shall be principally conducted shall be the borough of Manhattan."

The decedent suggests that the building be erected in the vicinity of the retail stores, but does not confine the executors to any particular district. He says he thinks the sort of building he desires can be erected and equipped for about $400,000, but he does not confine his agents to this sum. They can spend more if they think necessary.

"The building shall contain a library and restaurant," directs the decedent, "and such other appurtenances as will tend to render the apartments comfortable and attractive. Apartments are to be let furnished and unfurnished."

"I direct that said apartments shall not be conducted for profit, but solely for the purpose of providing unmarried working women with homes and whole some food at a small cost to them and in deserving cases without cost to them. I direct that the directors of said corporation shall fix the rentals and the prices of food with the view of carrying out that purpose. The cost of maintaining the apartment and restaurant in excess of the receipts therefrom shall be met from such income as the corporation may have exclusive of the receipts from said restaurant and rentals."

The decedent asks the executors to serve as officers of the corporation until the first annual meeting.

FED APRICOTS TO HOGS.

Fruit Market Was Glutted and In That Way Francis Used His.

Pomona, Cal.—Apricot ham is the latest novelty in this community. C. C. Francis, who has a ranch near here, is the producer. Last summer his apricot crop was going to waste because the market was glutted, so he fed the apricots to his hogs.

He butchered two hogs the other day. They each tipped the beam at 245 pounds. He got fifteen gallons of lard, seven pounds of sausage, four splendid hams, some spareribs, a quantity of side meat, eight pigs' feet and 100 pounds of soap out of the kill.

The hogs were carried through the summer and fall on waste fruit, and this winter they were finished on oranges and cornmeal slop. Mr. Francis declares that the high cost of living won't worry him for awhile at least.

WAITE CASE GIVES LESSON ON GERMS

Wholesale Death Could Be Accomplished by Cunning Man.

NO LAW GOVERNS THE SALE

Deadly Culture Tubes May Be Handed Out Freely Without Proper Investigation of Character and Intentions of the Purchaser—Dentist Unsuccessful In This Effort.

The crime of Dr. Arthur Warren Waite, in endeavoring to inoculate his millionaire parents-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Peck of Grand Rapids, with deadly germ cultures of virulent diseases has caused an investigation into the ease with which such germs can be secured. While Waite wasn't successful in causing Mr. Peck's death in this manner, he later, according to his own confession, poisoned the aged financier by giving him arsenic.

The disquieting fact has been revealed that any one possessing a measure of the cunning displayed by Dr. Waite could procure in New York city "for experimental purposes" almost any desired quantity of the deadliest disease germs which medical science has identified. The strict laws governing the sale of poisons are not duplicated by any laws regulating the distribution of virulent bacilli.

Though there is a provision of the sanitary code forbidding the sale of disease bacteria without permission of the board of health, there are dozens of laboratories where the germs of typhoid, diphtheria, tuberculosis, pneumonia, anthrax and other scourges have been procured in the past by persons whose responsibility has been investigated only in the most cursory manner.

Dr. Waite is suspected of having planned to inoculate with deadly combinations of bacilli those persons who stood between him and the Peck millions, and it is even asserted that developments may show that he experimented with the germs by inoculating his friends with them to see what would happen. The fact that he decided on arsenic when the time came for action does not lessen the danger that some one else might be impelled to carry out to its conclusion a bacilli crime of the sort Dr. Waite is thought to have devised.

Distribution Is Unregulated.

As an aftermath of the disturbance caused by Dr. Friedman and his "turtlet serum" cure for consumption the health department inserted in its sanitary code a provision governing the sale of disease germs. This provision prohibits the sale of any preparation containing living bacteria capable of causing disease without the permission of the board of health. The code further provides that the physician, in case a permit be granted, must enlighten the health department as to why he wants the bacteria and just how much he is to use as one dose. The sale of such bacteria without a permit is a misdemeanor and punishable by a heavy fine and a long term in prison.

This provision, it will be noted, governs only the "sale" of disease breeding bacilli and was devised to protect the public from quack serums of doubtful efficacy. It in no way restricts the laboratories in the hospitals and in the independent research institutes from providing deadly germs for any one who can convince them that he desires the cultures for medical experiments.

Laws Stops Transmission by Mail.

Dr. J. S. Ferguson, secretary of Cornell Medical college, where Dr. Waite procured some of the bacilli with which he experimented, states that so far as he knows there is no specific law or ordinance governing the distribution of deadly germs.

"I suppose the general criminal laws would cover the improper use of dangerous bacilli," said Dr. Ferguson, "but I know of no law to regulate their distribution. There is a federal statute which forbids the shipment of such germs through the mail, but that is the only law of the sort that I can recall."

"Naturally, no hospital or independent laboratory would give deadly germ cultures to a person who did not have credentials of some sort, but it would be largely a matter of judgment on the part of the person in the laboratory to whom the application was made. It is doubtful whether the person asking for the cultures would be asked to produce a medical diploma or other proof of his right to handle the germs of virulent diseases."

"Almost every hospital in New York has a laboratory in which cultures of disease germs are prepared. There are also a great many independent institutions where research work of the same sort is carried on."

Dr. Ferguson agreed that the use of deadly bacilli opened up practically a new field in crime.

British Order Guns In Japan.

The Asahi, a paper of Tokyo, Japan, says that the British government has sent to Japan an order for 400 three inch guns and accessories. All the guns ordered are to be finished and delivered before August next year. At first the British government desired all the guns to be made on the Armstrong pattern, but later it changed its decision and resolved to adopt the 1908 pattern gun of Japan.

SIMPLE LIFE BEST

Wear and Tear Cause Statesman to Die Young.

SAYS WORK ISN'T TO BLAME.

Yale Professor, After an Exhaustive Study on Question of Vitality of Our Public Men, Declares Quiet Life Is the Long One.

New Haven, Conn.—That the simple life is the long one and that the convivial social life of the nation's representatives in congress is not conducive to longevity, but has, on the contrary, been the means of taking off at a too early age many of the best men of the country, are deductions made by Professor Irving Fisher, one of the best known political economists in the country, after an exhaustive study.

"Presidents, vice presidents and congressmen are a select group, endowed at the outset with unusual vitality. The vitality of most of them is severely taxed and materially reduced by the heavy responsibilities and bad personal hygiene incident to a public career. A minority escape the worst of these conditions and retain the major part of their natural endowment of vitality. Bad hygiene has been more destructive than the weight of responsibility."

"This conclusion is suggested by the fact that the vice presidents suffer a greater curtailment of life than the presidents, although vice presidents have far less responsibility, but spend much more time in Washington social life than the presidents. It is also suggested by the fact that the civil war period, with its greater weight of responsibility but more simple living, showed a lower mortality than the periods preceding and following, with less weight of responsibility but less simple living."

Professor Fisher said that historically there has been a progressive decrease in those causes of death consisting of infections which kill their victims chiefly at the earlier ages, but a progressive change for the worse in those causes of death consisting of the wear and tear diseases or degenerative diseases which kill their victims chiefly at the later years.

"These opposite changes," Professor Fisher says, "in the infectious and degenerative diseases would explain the improvement in mortality at the earlier ages and, on the other hand, the non-improvement and, in the case of Yale graduates, even positive retrogression in the mortality of the older ages. Again, they would explain the marked exceptionality of the older ages in the civil war period. For if it was plain living which explained the low mortality of that period we should expect the more marked influence of that factor to appear just as it does, at the older ages at which the wear and tear mortality is chiefly registered."

"The damage to vitality which we find in public life is not, therefore, put forward as an argument against entering public service, nor will a knowledge of the facts probably tend in that direction, certainly not among those who place public interests above personal interests, as every public man should. But knowledge is power, and a knowledge of the facts should enable us to protect our public men or enable them to protect themselves and to do so in the public interest. This can be accomplished by better general health conditions in the country and its capital, by better health customs and habits, by better ideals and by a more systematic application of the perfect ideals already existing."

In connection with the lives of the presidents of the United States, Professor Fisher says:

"The longevity of each president is reckoned from the date of inauguration—that is, from the time of his first being president. Thus Washington became president at the age of fifty-seven, when the 'expectation' of life according to the American experience table, was sixteen years. He actually lived, however, only eleven years instead of the sixteen. John Adams, on the other hand, lived after inauguration twenty-nine years, which was two and three times his expectation of thirteen years."

HOW SOLDIERS JUDGE DISTANCE

Must Know How Far Away Enemy Is to Shoot Accurately.

GERMANS MOST EFFICIENT.

Marksmanship Depends on Sight—One Can See 100 Yards on a Moonlight Night, While on a Dark Night the Limit Is Twelve Yards—Our System of Determining Distance.

Many military experts have given it as their opinion that the training of soldiers' eyesight is the first and most important feature of musketry, and a man who is a good judge of distance is of much greater value on the battlefield than one who is a skilled shot only.

Not the least interesting are the lessons for training a soldier to see in the dark. It is impressed upon him that the ability to see in the dark increases with practice.

It is found that on open level ground a standing man in khaki can be seen on an ordinary dark night at about twelve yards, on a starlight night twenty-four yards and on a moonlight night, with the moon behind the observer, fifty yards.

When the moon is behind the person looked at the limit of vision is about 100 yards.

A column of fours moving toward the observer can be seen on an ordinary dark night at about eighteen yards' distance, with the moon behind the observer 120 yards and about 140 yards when the moon is behind the men looked at.

Can Judge at 1,000 Yards.

Soldiers are trained to judge distances up to 1,000 yards. Eight hundred yards is fixed as the limit for the rank and file, because it is found that the most expert shots rarely hit a small target, such as a prone figure, at a distance over 800 yards, even when the range is known.

The British standard of accuracy requires that the mean error for trained soldiers in judging distances within 800 yards' range should not exceed 100 yards. In judging distance tests officers, noncommissioned officers and men whose error exceeds 20 per cent are regarded as inefficient.

In Germany, according to "Notes on Visual Training," the best judges make 10 per cent of error; in Austria the average error is 12 per cent.

In France 15 per cent is laid down as the normal error up to 1,000 yards. In America a very practical sliding scale is in vogue, where the highest skill in shooting must be accompanied by a high standard in judging distance.

The following is a rough guide for judging lateral distances, running at right angles to the observer at various distances: With one eye shut and the hand at arm's length to the front with the fingers perpendicular, the breadth of six fingers will cover 100 yards of lateral distance at a distance of 500 yards from the observer.

Under the same conditions the breadth of three fingers will cover a lateral distance of 100 yards at a distance of 1,000 yards.

The breadth of two fingers will cover a lateral distance of 100 yards at 1,500 yards.

The width of the thumb will roughly cover 100 yards of lateral distance 2,000 yards away.

This method may be employed to indicate roughly the approximate distance of an objective from a description point. Only one hand should be used, even if more than one hand's breadth is required to indicate the distance.

The arm must be held out perfectly straight from the shoulder in front of the face, with the fingers vertical. If, however, the object is immediately above or below the description point the fingers should be horizontal.

In measuring distances, one eye should be closed and both the description point and the objective kept in view.

MEXICAN WOMEN PATRIOTIC.

Will Burn Paper Money So That Government Won't Have to Pay.

The women of the republic of Mexico have issued an appeal through the press for a supreme effort to lift the interior debt, represented by the present issue of paper money.

Labor unions, government employees and others are called on to make weekly contributions in bills, which it is proposed to burn in public squares instead of turning them into the treasury. In addition, men, women and children are asked to make contributions of jewelry, plate and metallic money. According to this plan the Guild of Leather Workers has agreed to burn 20,000 pesos.

The women in their nation wide appeal cite the conduct of the French after the war of 1870 and call on all patriotic Mexicans to aid in the work of reconstruction.

EYES ON AVIATORS

Spectacular Air Battles In Europe Focus Attention.

AMAZING PROGRESS MADE.

Many a Sensation Is Produced When Bird Men Meet In Air—Participants Could Give Story With Imperishable Vividness—Often Near Death.

London.—Europe's war has produced conditions that make aeroplaning the grimmest adventure known to man. War is man's oldest game. Aviation is his latest. Each day intrepid air men, under twenty-five years of age for the most part, like hawks make course above roof, tent, rampart and battlefield to thrust suddenly below premeditated thunderbolts of death. They fight duels in the air with other indomitable young men in enemy aeroplanes. When something goes wrong a mile or more above earth on a mild June evening in time of peace a queer sensation is produced. The percussive crack heard by thousands of air men above the European battle lines these days and nights in all kinds of weather produces a sensation much more queer. A lieutenant just out of his teens, a wing broken, clinging to his duty, his ears deafened, little knowing whether it is the whistling storm he hears or the whirl of shot—thousands of such men can testify that an experience of the sort is a thing of imperishable vividness.

Cowdin and Thaw, among numerous Americans who have joined the fighting air men, can tell many such tales. Boelke, Immelmann, Gnyemer, Bone, among the newcomers, and Vedrines, Beaumont and Garros, to mention a few of the veterans, are making ineffaceable records. These men use the aeroplane, or avion, as they call it, not merely as a scouting vehicle, but as a deadly instrument of offense.

Lieutenant Boelke of the German army recently brought down his thirteenth machine over the Forges forest. Lieutenant Baron von Althaus brought down his fourth aeroplane over enemy lines west of Lihons. The element of sport enters even into aeroplane warfare. After all, thinks the aviator, the shame is not so much in being caught as being caught by a mere amateur with a paltry record of two or three captures to his name.

Lieutenant Immelmann recently bagged his tenth enemy aeroplane. The gallantry and bravery of Lieutenant Warneford illustrates the spirit of these European aviators. Single handed he attacked a Zeppelin and destroyed it. A few days later, accompanied by the American writer Needham, he made a pleasure trip, and both men were killed in landing.

On intimate terms with death were those fifty air men who fought the greatest aerial battle of the war recently when the allied aeroplanes raided Mulhausen, Upper Alsace. Five German aeroplanes and three French fell, the occupants of all being killed.

On the outbreak of the war Adolphe Pegout, the famous French aviator who gained renown in 1913 when he originated the feat of flying upside down in an aeroplane and looping the loop, joined the French squadron and was often mentioned for valor. He startled the American people when he came to this country and did the loop the loop. His daring feats will go down in aeronautic history.

CHAPTER XVII.

A Word of Encouragement.

ONE usually has breakfast on the porch of the Hotel Schweizerhof at Interlaken. It is not the most fashionable hostelry in the quaint little town at the head of the lake of Thun, but it is of an excellent character, and the rolls and honey to be had with one's breakfast cannot be surpassed in the Bernese Oberland.

R. Schmidt sat facing the dejected Boske Dank. His eyes were dancing with the joy of living.

"Well, here we are, and, in spite of that, where are we?" said Dank, who saw nothing beautiful in the smile of any early morn. "I mean to say, what have we to show for our pains? We sneak into this God forsaken hamlet, surrounded on all sides by abominations in the shape of tourists, and at the end of twenty-four hours we discover that the fair Miss Guile has played us a shabby trick. I daresay she is laughing herself sick over the whole business."

"Which is more than you can say for yourself, Boske," said Robin blithely. "Brace up! All is not lost. We'll wait here a day or two longer and then—"

"Hello, who is this approaching? It is no other than the great Gourou himself, the king of sleuths, as they say in the books I used to read. Good morning, baron."

The sharp visaged little minister of police came up to the table and fixed an accusing eye upon his sovereign—the literal truth, for he had the other eye closed in a protracted wink.

"I regret to inform your majesty that the enemy is upon us," he said. "I fear that our retreat is cut off. Nothing remains save—"

"Where is she?" demanded Robin, unimpressed by this glowing panegyric.

"At this instant, sir, I fancy she is rallying her forces in the very face of a helpless mirror. In other words, she is preparing for the fray. She is dressing."

"When did she arrive?"

"She came last night via Milan."

"From Milan?" cried Robin, astonished.

"A roundabout way, I'll admit," said the baron, dryly, "and tortuous in these hot days, but admirably suited to a purpose. I should say that she was bent on throwing some one off the track."

"And yet she came!" cried the prince, in exultation. "She wanted to come, after all, now didn't she, Dank?" He gave the lieutenant a look of triumph.

"She is more dangerous than I thought," said the guardsman mournfully.

"Sit down, baron," commanded the prince. "I want to lay down the law to all of you. You three will have to move on to Graustark and leave me to look out for myself. I will not have Miss Guile!"

"Not!" exclaimed the baron, with unusual vehemence. "I expected you to propose something of the kind, and I am obliged to confess to you that we have discussed the contingency in advance. We will not leave you. That is final. You may depose us, exile us, curse us or anything you like, but still we shall remain true to the duty we owe to our country. We stay here, Prince Robin, just so long as you are content to remain."

Robin's face was very red. "You shame me, baron," he said simply.

"Now, I have a suggestion of my own to offer," said the baron, taking a seat at the end of the table. "I confess that Miss Guile may not be favorably impressed by the constant attendance of three able-bodied nurses, and, as she happens to be no fool, it is reasonably certain that she will grasp the significance of our assiduity. Now I propose that the count, Dank and myself efface ourselves as completely as possible during the rest of our enforced stay in Interlaken. I propose that we take quarters in another hotel and leave you and Hobbs to the tender mercies of the enemy. It seems to me that—"

"Good!" cried Robin. "That's the ticket! I quite agree to that, baron."

Ten o'clock found the three gentlemen—so classified by Hobbs—out of the Schweizerhof and arranging for accommodations at the Regina Hotel Jungfraublick.

He was somewhat puzzled by the strange submissiveness of his companions. Deep down in his mind lurked the disquieting suspicion that they were conniving to get the better of the lovely temptress by some sly and secret bit of strategy. What had become of their anxiety, their eagerness to drag him off to Graustark by the first train?

Enlightenment came unexpectedly and with a shock to his composure.

Two people emerged from the door, and, passing by without so much as a glance in his direction, made their way to the mounting block. Robin's heart went down to his boots. Bedelia, a graceful figure in a smart riding habit, was laughing blithely over a soft spoken remark that her companion had made as they were crossing the porch. And that companion was no other than the tall, good looking fellow who had met her at Cherbourg! The prince, stunned and incredulous, watched them mount their horses and canter away, followed by a groom who seemed to have sprung up from nowhere.

"Good morning, Mr. Schmidt," spoke a voice, and, still bewildered, he whirled, hat in hand, to confront Mrs. Gaston. "Did I startle you?"

He bowed stiffly over the hand she held out for him to clasp and murmured something about being proof against any surprise.

"Isn't it a glorious morning? And how wonderful she is in this gorgeous sunlight," went on Mrs. Gaston, in what may be described as a hurried, nervous manner.

"I had the briefest glimpse of her," humbled Robin. "When did she come?"

"Centuries and centuries ago, Mr. Schmidt," said she, with a smile. "I was speaking of the Jungfrau."

"Oh!" he exclaimed, flushing. "I thought you—er—yes, of course! Really quite wonderful."

"Your mind has gone horseback riding, I fear. At present it is between here and Lauterbrunnen, jogging beside that roaring little torrent that—"

"I don't mind confessing that you are quite right," he said frankly.

"You are in love."

"I am," he confessed.

She laid her hand upon his. Her eyes were wide with eagerness.

"Would it drive away the blues if I were to tell you that you have a chance to win her?"

He felt his head spinning. "If—I could believe that—that!" he began and choked up with the rush of emotion that swept through him.

"She is a strange girl. She will marry for love alone. Her father is determined that she shall marry a royal prince. That much I may confess to you. She has defied her father, Mr. Schmidt. She will marry for love, and I believe it is in your power to awaken love in that adorable heart of hers. You?"

"Where is she?" demanded Robin.

"For God's sake, Mrs. Gaston, tell me—tell me, has she breathed a word to you that—"

"Not a single word. But I know her well. I have known her since she was a baby, and I can read the soul that looks out through those lovely eyes."

"But you—you don't know anything about me. I may be the veriest adventurer. I must be honest with you, Mrs. Gaston," he said suddenly. "I am not!"

She held up her hand. "Mr. Totten has informed me that you are a life-long friend of Mrs. Truxton King. I cabled to her from Paris. There is no more to be said."

His face fell. "Did she tell you—everything?"

"She said no more than that R. Schmidt is the finest boy in all the world." Suddenly her face paled. "You are never—never to breathe a word of this—to Bedelia," she whispered.

"But her father? What will he say to—"

"Her father has said all that can be said," she broke in quietly. "He cannot force her to marry the man he has selected. She will marry the man she loves."

"Thank you, thank you, Mrs. Gaston," he cried, with shining eyes. "God bless you!"

Night came and with it the silvery glow of moonlight across the hoary headed queen of the Oberland. When Robin came out from dinner he seated himself on the porch, expectant, eager—and vastly lonesome.

She came at last—and alone. Stopping at the rail not more than an arm's length from where he sat, she gazed pensively up at the solemn mistress of the valley, one slim hand at her bosom, the other hanging limp at her side. He was in thralldom. "Bedelia!" he whispered softly.

She turned quickly, to find him standing beside her, his face aglow with rapture. A quick catch of the breath, a sudden movement of the hand that lay upon her breast and then she smiled—a wavering, uncertain smile that went straight to his heart and shamed him for startling her. "I beg your pardon," he began lamely. "I—I startled you."

She held out her hand to him, still smiling. "I fear I shall never become accustomed to being pursued," she said, striving for command of her voice. "It is dreadful to feel that some one is forever watching you from behind. I am glad it is you, however. You at least are not 'the secret eye that never sleeps!'" She gently withdrew her hand from his ardent clasp. "Mrs. Gaston told me that she had seen you. I feared that you might have gone on your way rejoicing."

"Rejoicing?" he cried. "Why do you say that?"

"After our experience in Paris I should think that you had had enough of me and my faithful watchdogs."

"Then you are being followed?"

She smiled again, and there was mischief in her eye. "If so I have led them a merry chase. We have been traveling for two days and nights, Mr. Schmidt, by train and motor, getting off at stations unexpectedly, hopping into trains going in any direction but the right one, sleeping in strange beds and doing all manner of queer things."

"I see that your retinue has been substantially augmented," he remarked, a trace of jealousy in his voice. "The good looking Mr. White has not been eluded."

"Mr. White? Oh, yes, I see. But he is to be trusted, Mr. Schmidt," she said mysteriously—and tantalizingly. "He will not betray me to my cruel monster of a father."

"I saw you this morning riding with him," said he glumly.

She turned her face away and for a moment was silent. "Shall we take those chairs over there, Mr. Schmidt? They appear to be as abandoned as we."

He shook his head. "If we are looking for the most utterly abandoned allow me to call your attention to the two in yonder corner."

"It is quite dark over there," she said with a frown.

"Quite," he agreed. "Which accounts, no doubt, for your failure to see them."

"Mrs. Gaston will be looking for me before"—she began hesitatingly.

"Or Mr. White, perhaps. Let me remind you that they have exceedingly sharp eyes."

"Mr. White is no longer here," she announced.

His heart leaped. "Then I, at least, have nothing to fear," he said quickly.

She ignored the banality. "He left this afternoon. Very well, let us take the seats over there. I rather like the—shall I say shadows?"

"Now, tell me everything," he said. "From beginning to end. What became of you after that day at St. Cloud, whither have you journeyed, and wherefore were you so bent on coming to this now blessed Interlaken?"

"Easily answered. Nothing at all became of me. I journey thither, and I came because I had set my heart on seeing the Jungfrau."

"But you had seen it many times."

"And I hoped that I might find peace and quiet here," she added quite distinctly.

"You expected to find me here, didn't you?"

"Yes, but I did not regard you as a disturber of the peace."

"You knew I would come, but you didn't know why, did you, Bedelia?" He leaned a little closer.

"Yes, I knew why," she said calmly, emotionlessly. He drew back instantly, chilled by her directness. "You came because there was promise of an interesting adventure, which you now are on the point of making impossible by a rather rash exhibition of haste."

He stared at her shadowy face in utter confusion. For a moment he was speechless. Then a rush of protesting sincerity surged up within him, and he cried out in low, intense tones: "I cannot allow you to think that of me, Miss Guile. If I have done or said anything to lead you to believe that I am—"

She laughed joyously, naturally. "You really are quite wonderful, Mr. Schmidt. Still I must change the subject. I trust the change will not affect your glibness, for it is quite exhilarating. How long do you purpose remaining in Interlaken?"

"That isn't changing the subject," said he. "I shall be here for a week or ten days—or perhaps longer?" He put it in the form of a question, after all.

"Indeed? How I envy you. I am sorry to say I shall have to leave in a day or two."

His face fell. "Why?" he demanded, almost indignantly.

"I am having such a good time disobeying my father, Mr. Schmidt, and eluding pursuers. It is only a matter of a day or two before I am discovered here, so I mean to keep on dodging. It is splendid fun."

"Do you mind telling me where you are going to, Miss Guile?"

"First to Vienna, then—well, you cannot guess where. I have decided to go to Edelweiss."

"Edelweiss!" he exclaimed in astonishment. He could hardly believe his ears.

"It is the very last place in the world that my father would think of looking for me. Besides, I am curious to see the place. I understand that the great Mr. Blithers is to be there soon, and the stupid prince who will not be tempted by millions, and it is even possible that the extraordinary Miss Blithers may take it into her head to look the place over before definitely refusing to be its princess. I may find some amusement or entertainment as an onlooker when the riots begin."

He was staring at her wide eyed and incredulous. "Do you really mean to say you are going to Graustark?"

"I have thought of doing so. Don't you think it will be amusing to be on the scene when the grand climax occurs?"

All this time she was regarding him through amused, half closed eyes. She had a distinct advantage over him. She knew that he was the Prince of Graustark; she had known it for many days. Perhaps if she had known all the things that were in his cunning brain she would not have ventured so far into the comedy she was constructing. She would have hesitated—aye, she might have changed her methods completely. But she was in the mood to do and say daring things.

Fire Districts.

Seymour's fire map shows that the five wards are divided into twenty-two fire districts and when an alarm is given the fire bell gives the number of the ward in taps, then after a pause the district number is sounded. When calling the telephone exchange for a fire alarm always give the street and number where the fire is located. Don't attempt to call by fire districts.

See your dentist twice yearly. Use Senreco twice daily.

Tender Teeth—the first sign of Pyorrhea

When you brush your teeth, does it feel as though you were brushing against the quick? Do the gums sometimes bleed? This is because pyorrhea has caused the gums to pull away from your teeth, leaving the unenamelled surfaces unprotected.

Your dentist will tell you, if you ask him, that you have gum recession; and that gum recession is caused by pyorrhea.

Unchecked, pyorrhea will warp and shrink and deform the gums. It will break down the bony structure into which the teeth are set—and you will eventually lose them. To save your teeth you will have to begin to fight this dread disease at once.

A specific for pyorrhea has been discovered recently by dental science, and is now offered for daily treatment in Senreco Tooth Paste. Senreco combats the germ of the disease. Its regular use insures your teeth against the attack or further progress of pyorrhea.

But Senreco does more. It cleanses the teeth delightfully. It gives them a whiteness distinctive of Senreco alone. Its flavor is entirely pleasing, and it leaves in the mouth a wonderful sense of coolness and wholesomeness.

Start the Senreco treatment before pyorrhea grips you for good. Details in folder with every tube. A two-ounce tube for 25c is sufficient for 6 weeks' daily treatment. Get Senreco of your druggist today; or send 4c in stamps or coin for sample tube and folder. Address The Sentinel Remedies Company 503 Union Central Building, Cincinnati, Ohio.

RELATES HARDSHIPS IN PURSUIT OF VILLA

Indian Scout Says Difficulties Face U. S. Army.

Denver.—Some of the difficulties that face the United States army in its pursuit of Villa were told here by James H. Cook, who in 1885 was chief scout for the Eighth United States cavalry that crossed into Mexico and captured Geronimo, the Apache chief. He led the American soldiers over much of the country the United States soldiers must cover to get Villa. He said:

"A veritable zone of death will have to be traversed by the American troops. They will have to go over some of the worst country in the world. If Villa chooses he can fight as Geronimo and his followers did—go back into the mountains, kill his horses, scatter on foot and pick our soldiers off one by one from behind rocks. It may take us months, even years, to get Villa."

"But no men on earth are better for the task than the officers in charge of the American expedition. I personally know Lieutenant Colonel D. C. Cabell, now chief of staff to General Pershing. He was with me on the Geronimo expedition and knows the country as well as any white man."

"The aeroplane will assist our troops in the campaign, but it cannot match with all the difficulties of the region. Between the peaks are deep canyons, sometimes 1,000 feet deep and less than forty feet wide. These ravines cannot be crossed by any except the old Indians of the country. They can get over on foot."

"The only thing that makes the expedition look hopeful to me is my faith in the men who command it."

5 and 10 Cent Store

SHORTAGE OF WHITE PAPER FELT IN NEWSPAPER OFFICES

Paper Has Advanced Fifty to One Hundred Per Cent. and is Difficult to Obtain at Any Price.

The serious white paper situation is making itself felt in newspaper offices over the country. There has been an increase in price of white paper from fifty to one hundred per cent according to the quantities bought. In addition to this increase in price there has been an increasing difficulty in securing the paper at all. The situation has reached a point where the newspapers even when willing to pay the price find great difficulty in getting the supply.

A striking illustration of the situation is given in the following statement from the Lima, O., Daily News of last Thursday:

"Shortage of white paper threatens Lima newspapers. All advertisers and users of space in any way in this paper will take notice that necessary economy measures have been forced upon us because of the shortage in news print paper. Today we are issuing a 12-page paper when we have business enough for 16 pages, because there is only enough paper in our storage to run us until April 22."

"Space will be conserved in every manner; many features and news-cuts abandoned. The News will publish from this date forward no lodge notices, no church notices except titles of sermons, no theater cuts, all local and telegraph news will be boiled down to actual facts. Every effort will be made to be concise yet clear as to detail. Users of space must co-operate with us in every way possible."

"All service papers will be discontinued without notice; all exchanges not actually paid have been taken from our mailing lists and street sales may be abandoned the last half of the month. Every extra page that can be saved must be saved and unless conditions change we may be forced to run only an 8-page paper towards the last of the month."

The Republican had a request from a neighboring town this morning for newspaper. In the letter the publisher stated that he had an order for paper which should have reached him three weeks ago but like other newspapers he is unable to secure the shipment to his office.

It is impossible to get white newspaper at all. This accounts for the heavy yellowish cream tint which has characterized the Republican for two or three weeks and which is becoming a characteristic of all papers both city and country.

The reason assigned for this color is that bleaching material is not obtainable. Much of it is made by sulphuric acid process and sulphuric acid just now is in heavy demand for munitions of war. The shortage of paper and high prices are accounted for by the slackening of work in paper mills in Norway and Sweden through their inability to obtain coal and pulp. This causes an increased demand on American mills for European shipments and for South American shipments.

The paper supply houses have withdrawn all quotations on paper of all kinds and nothing is obtainable except at a heavy advance over prices that prevailed thirty and sixty days ago.
